#TEENS

Teenagers

Introduction

Oh the world of teens. We walk around like zombies with bags under our eyes and sleepy arms. our odd way of dressing in skinny jeans and shirts that look hip. Even I should know, I am a teen. Wearing Jeans. Glasses and a jacket, which would get me the rank of a “hipster”. “Why am I a hipster?!” The thing is I am no hipster.

Oh I can't believe I forgot to introduce myself! Hello my name is Samantha Anendella and I'm a teen. Due to today's world teens think that they must stick with their friends and not listen to their parents. Sorry to say but I'm not that person. I work hard each day and try to listen to my parents. Though this story isn't me just bragging, it's the story of the life in middle school, high school and the facts that people should know. You can stop reading if you want, but I'll keep writing.

In the time being I'll tell you a great story, about middle school and high school and how hard is is to handle challenges.

So without any interruptions lets keep going...

Chapter 1

“Romeo oh um like Romeo where for is that guy!” Was what I heard Annabelle Pickerson. She's the most popular girl in school. She lives in the same neighborhood as me though. I live in a big house with a nice lawn and backyard with a patio and pool. She lives right across the street from me, so I always see her every single day. We don't like each other. Every time I walk to school she always comes up to me, she always looks at me and her shirt with her lipstick on saying, “Hey there!”

I mainly ignore her most of the time, usually while listening to my music with my earphones. Today though was the day she was trying out for the play of Romeo and Juliet. The part that I wanted to try and get. The thing is she always got the leading role of as female in all the plays the school did. I only had to sit there or watch or just be in the background as an extra, always an extra.

Chapter 2 by Rachel Dey

But today I could not play an extra because Romeo was mine. I had practiced for weeks upon end for this part, I had sung every song at least forty times and I knew the lines by heart. There was no way that I wouldn't get the role. The boy who would definitely get the role of Romeo was Victor Mason the most popular guy in school who had just recently broken up with Annabelle Pickerson. For years I had adored him and if we both got the role he could finally be mine.
